Now more than ever is an excellent time to join the statewide association of the manufactured housing industry.

Through proactive programs and initiatives, MMHA works closely with its membership to improve the business climate for manufactured housing. MMHA and its members have many educational opportunities.

We can be a cohesive voice for the industry as we work together to help shape key programs and policies that make us shine.

Thank you to continuing members – your support is greatly appreciated! Please help recruit other potential members to keep our association vibrant and growing!

A Manufactured Home is a home built entirely in the factory under a federal building code administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Manufactured homes may be single or multi-section and are transported to the site and installed.

Federal standards regulate manufactured housing design and construction, strength and durability, transportability, fire resistance, energy efficiency and quality. The HUD Code also sets performance standards for heating, plumbing, air conditioning, thermal and electrical systems. It is the only national building code.

Manufactured homes offer excellent value per square foot.
